June Caravel

June Caravel Declares Her Love To London, Gershwin And Bach In New EP

On January 10th 2012, French singer-songwriter June Caravel releases her new EP The A Cappella Sessions. June has stripped down all the songs on the EP to her bare vocals by re-creating all instruments through an eclectic mix of beat boxing, backing vocals and bass lines and a dose of snaps and claps.

June's first singing experience was in a school choir aged 11. There she learnt Gershwin's Summertime and also a choir piece by Bach, both of which feature on The A Cappella Sessions. "With The A Cappella Sessions I want to pay tribute to my formative years where I first discovered the power of harmony through none other than the master of it, Bach." Paris-born June also declares her love to London in the London Song Video (<http://www.youtube.com/watch?v=txtLnQlaTJk>), which has already more than 5000 cumulated views on Youtube, Vimeo and Dailymotion. June's approach to A Cappella comes with an original twist. The A Cappella Sessions turns Bach groovy, gives Summertime a gospel gloss and injects a mixture of jazz, drum'n'bass, soul and electro into her own songs I'm not forgiving you, I'm gonna put some make-up on and London Song.

The A Cappella Sessions EP will be released digitally on all platforms on January 10, 2010. To celebrate the release, June is organizing a Remix Contest for London Song in January with Soundcloud: <http://junecaravel.free.fr/londonsongremix.html>
